

A full-page photograph of a muscular man with a dark beard and chest hair, sitting in a stone archway. He has his arms crossed and is looking directly at the camera. The archway is made of rough-hewn stone and has some faint, illegible inscriptions. The lighting is dramatic, highlighting the man's physique.

Synopsis book

Meet the Larrikin Lads. Photographed mainly in England, this fourth volume in the Larrikin series is more from Paul Freeman about the working man. Here they are depicted toiling and cavorting in unwelcoming semi-rural, semi-industrial environments, used skilfully to emphasise visceral masculinity and stoicism, but also to accentuate vulnerabilities. And the happy perseverance of men amongst the dirt is, along with their unashamed nakedness, one of the signature Freeman eulogies to male beauty, strength and sensuality.

Larrikin Lads by Paul Freeman

A full-page photograph of a very muscular man with a thick, dark beard and mustache. He is shirtless, showing his well-defined chest, arms, and legs. He is sitting in a large, circular stone archway, possibly a tunnel entrance, with his arms crossed. The stone archway has some faint, illegible markings on its inner surface. The lighting is dramatic, highlighting the man's physique.
