

The background of the cover is a dramatic landscape at sunset or sunrise. The sky is filled with dark, heavy clouds, with a bright orange and yellow glow from the sun low on the horizon. In the middle ground, there is a dark, silhouetted building, possibly a barn or a small house, with a few bare trees in front of it. The foreground is a field of low-lying, dark vegetation, possibly wildflowers or weeds, which are also silhouetted against the bright light from the horizon.

Synopsis book

October 1946, Clanton, Mississippi Pete Banning was Clanton, Mississippi's favorite son--a decorated World War II hero, the patriarch of a prominent family, a farmer, father, neighbor, and a faithful member of the Methodist church. Then one cool October morning he rose early, drove into town, walked into the church, and calmly shot and killed his pastor and friend, the Reverend Dexter Bell.

As if the murder weren't shocking enough, it was even more baffling that Pete's only statement about it--to the sheriff, to his lawyers, to the judge, to the jury, and to his family--was: "I have nothing to say." He was not afraid of death and was willing to take his motive to the grave. In a major novel unlike anything he has written before, John Grisham takes us on an incredible journey, from the Jim Crow South to the jungles of the Philippines during World War II; from an insane asylum filled with secrets to the Clanton courtroom where Pete's defense attorney tries desperately to save him.

The background of the cover is a photograph of a rural landscape at sunset or sunrise. The sky is filled with dark, dramatic clouds, some of which are illuminated from below by a bright orange and yellow light source, likely the sun. In the middle ground, there is a dark, silhouetted barn or large house. To the left of the building, a bare tree stands against the glowing sky. The foreground is a field of low-lying plants, possibly wildflowers, which are also silhouetted against the bright light. The overall mood is somber and atmospheric.
